DETECTIVE'S HEARING.

The preliminary hearing of J. C. Emerson, the Merchants, Manufacturers and Employers' Association detective, was held last Tuesday in Martinez. The charge was having burglarized dynamite from railroad cars.

Assistant District Attorney A. S. Ormsby acted as prosecutor; Maxwell McNutt, San Francisco attorney, appeared as special prosecutor. He has been retained by the unions. Attorneys J. E. Rodgers and A. F. Bray represent Emerson.

H. C. Brokaw of the M., M. and E., Emerson's employer, was a witness.

George Higgins, shipping clerk at Hercules, testified to shipping a car of dynamite to Nevada City. He identified the stolen dynamite.

Under Sheriff W. M. Veale told of being summoned to Bay Point to assist Constable C. H. Palmer, who had arrested Emerson.

Constable Palmer's story of the arrest was the most interesting testimony. Palmer recounted the story of how Emerson had walked into the Bay Point station and deposited the suit case. On being arrested he denied the ownership of the suit case. Later he admitted possession of the suit case, but stated that he had found it and had no knowledge of its contents. It was not until told to get into the automobile that he objected to riding with the suit case. He exclaimed, "It's loaded for bear."

The suit case was then opened and the dynamite discovered.

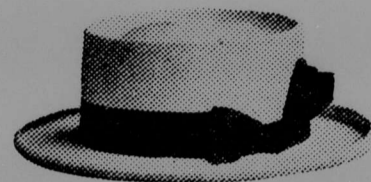

Emerson was bound over to the Superior Court on this charge, and another charge of having high explosives unlawfully in his possession was preferred against him.

Though all the winds of doctrine were let loose to play upon the earth, so truth be in the field, we do ingloriously, by licensing and prohibiting, misdoubt her strength. Let her and falsehood grapple; who ever knew truth put to the worse in a free and open encounter?—Milton.

“WHY should there be any prohibition of the sale of alcoholic drink? Why shouldn't I have the right to drink just what I would like, provided I do it decently and not to excess? Because one person makes a fool of himself is no reason why the next person should be deprived of it. The American people seem to be tending in a wholly wrong direction in this matter.”

Vote “NO” on Proposition No. 2

FAIRNESS OF COLORADO COAL MINERS.

The United Mine Workers of America have accepted President Wilson's proposition for a three year truce and settlement of the coal strike. The coal operators, who have always refused to discuss grievances with their former employees, have continued this policy by arrogantly defying the President of the United States.

Acceptance of President Wilson's proposition, which in many ways was unsatisfactory and objectionable to the strikers, personified the spirit of fairness on which the United Mine Workers was built into the biggest labor organization in the world and which has made it possible to secure contracts for 450,000 men working in the mines of the United States.

Fairness is the keystone on which a system of highest efficiency has been reached in the coal mining industry. Except for the knowledge of the operators in organized States that their men had certain inherent rights, these mine owners would be in the same position as those of Colorado, spending millions of dollars to deny their men justice and employing men at this additional cost who could only produce half as much coal as a union man and then a large percentage of that slack.

This spirit of fairness on the part of the miners has characterized their struggle in Colorado.

When, on September 15, 1913, they decided that they could not obtain their rights except by a strike, they asked only for an enforcement of all laws, the recognition of the union so they could collectively see that these laws would be enforced, and a wage scale similar to that received by miners in the neighboring State of Wyoming.

Before declaring for a strike, the miners asked the operators for a conference, believing that they could have no objection to an enforcement of mining laws made certain through recognition of the union or to paying wages equal to those received by miners in Wyoming where mining is identical with that in Colorado.

The operators arrogantly refused to meet their employees, claiming that they had "nothing to arbitrate."

Consequently ninety-five per cent of the miners went out on strike September 23, 1913.

Ethelbert Stewart was sent to Colorado by Secretary of Labor W. B. Wilson to attempt to effect a settlement. The strikers gave him every assistance possible. The operators insulted him. L. M. Bowers, personal representative of John D. Rockefeller, when Mr. Stewart asked him for information, told him "it was none of his business."

Then came Secretary of Labor Wilson. He was snubbed by the operators who cast reflections on his personal integrity because he was a member of the United Mine Workers.

By introducing false and misleading testimony before the Congressional Investigating Committee, the mine owners again tried to evade responsibility for their injustice to their former employees.

The operators likewise treated with indifference the investigation of Hywell Davies and William Fairley, conciliators appointed at the suggestion of President Wilson.

And now comes the most unfair action of the strike, the defiance of the President of the United States.

The miners, believing in the integrity and wisdom of the President of the United States and because of their interest in the welfare of the suffering citizens of Colorado, have waived important demands to promote peace and at the same time comply with President Wilson's very urgent request.

How long will the people of this country permit the Colorado coal operators to defy the President of the United States?

PROPOSED CHARTER AMENDMENT.
Section 11, Chapter 1, Article III.

Section 11. On or before the third Monday of September of each year the Supervisors shall levy the amount of taxes for city and county purposes required to be levied on all property not exempt from taxation. The amount shall be sufficient to provide for the payment during the fiscal year of all demands upon the treasury authorized to be paid out of the same. A tax, not exceeding one dollar on each one hundred dollars assessed valuation, may be levied for the general and pension funds, and a tax may be levied sufficient to pay the principal and interest on bonds sold or that may be sold during the fiscal year and to become due prior to the fixing of the next annual tax levy, and a tax levied for the Park Fund and for the Library Fund as provided in this charter, and an additional tax levied for the payment of demands and obligations imposed upon the city and county by the government of the United States and by the State of California, and any increase in the expense of the city and county as the result of any measure hereafter voted by the people.

The Board of Supervisors, by an affirmative vote of 14 members, may create special funds and levy taxes therefor for the following purposes: For the conduct of elections, for the support of schools, for the construction and reconstruction of buildings for the police, fire, health and school departments and detention home; for the construction and reconstruction of streets and sewers. The total tax to be levied for such special funds shall not exceed 65 cents on each one hundred dollars of assessed valuation. Any surplus remaining in any of the funds so created at the end of a fiscal year shall be continued therein and expended for a similar purpose as that for which the tax was levied and shall not constitute any part of the surplus fund referred to in Section 3, Chapter II, Article III of this Charter. The provisions of this section shall continue for ten fiscal years after the approval of this amendment by the Legislature and no longer.

Note—If the tax levied for the special funds be limited the emergency tax ought not to be repealed.

SOME UNANSWERED ARGUMENTS.
By Thomas W. Williams.

The following propositions remain unanswered by the enemies of the eight-hour law.

We are willing to yield our position in affirming an eight-hour law for California, providing our enemies can disprove one of the following statements:

(1) Wherever men work longest, in establishment, community or nation, they always get the smallest pay.

(2) As hours have been reduced in establishment, city, county, state or nation, wages have, by inverse ratio, been raised.

(3) Wherever hours have been reduced, and a reasonable time has been given to test the new order, both employer and employee have been satisfied.

(4) In the great majority of instances, and where men have been unrestricted by mechanical handicaps, there has been an increase rather than a decrease in output.

(5) All the arguments against this bill are made in terms of money and are based on profits or property.

(6) No humanitarian, social, moral, sanitary or religious argument can be adduced against the bill.

(7) Nations, countries, states and industries find their competition keenest not with the nations, countries, states and industries which work the longest hours, but with those nations, countries, states and industries which work shorter hours than they do.

BOARD DEADLOCKED.

The question of awarding the contract for printing the municipal reports came up in the Board of Supervisors last Monday. The question came up on a majority report of the Supplies Committee. Supervisor Hayden dissenting, which recommended awarding the contract for printing the municipal reports for the fiscal year 1912-13 to the Levison Printing Company, which firm has the Allied Printing Trades union label.

When it came to a vote on the resolution of the Supplies Committee the Board was deadlocked with nine votes on each side. Bancroft, Murdock, Suhr, Vogelsang, Hilmer, McCarthy, Payot, Jennings and Hayden voted to award the contract to the Neal Publishing Company, a concern not entitled to the label, while Nelson, Kortick, McLaren, Power, Deasy, Gallagher, Hocks, Nolan and Walsh voted to avoid the contract to a union label office.

Almost the same result was reached on the committee resolution to award a minor contract to the Neal Publishing Company, whose bid was slightly lower than that of the Rincon Company.

A deadlock resulted from Gallagher's motion to amend the resolution and give the contract to the Rincon Company, but on the vote on the original motion McLeran changed his vote and the resolution carried.

Immediately, however, Gallagher also changed his vote and gave notice of a motion to reconsider at the next meeting, which leaves the resolution "up in the air."

EMPLOYERS ORGANIZE.

A number of manufacturers of five Pacific Coast and Western States met in the offices of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association Monday and completed the formation of the Pacific Federation of Employers by electing officers and selecting a board of directors, composed of eleven men identified with the manufacturing business in the West. This new organization is the successor to the Federation of Employers' Associations of the Pacific Coast. The personnel of the new organization follows:

President, J. Bruce Gibson, president of the Sumner Iron Works, Everett, Wash.; vice-president, J. W. Mason, president of the Western Pipe and Steel Company, San Francisco; treasurer, Frederick J. Koster, president of the California Barrel Company, San Francisco.

The membership of this new organization includes manufacturers throughout California, Oregon, Washington, Utah and Arizona.

The purposes of the organization are said to be to bring into closer touch all the employers of the Coast and employers' associations organized in the five States mentioned.

Truth is as impossible to be soiled by any outward touch as the sunbeam.—Milton.

ORPHEUM THEATRE.

The Orpheum announces for next week an exceptionally good program, with seven entirely new acts. Joseph Jefferson, whose illustrious father is remembered as the greatest of all American comedians, will head the bill. He will appear in a laughable farce entitled "Poor Old Jim" and will be supported by that very charming comedienne, Blanche Bender, and a capable company. Music lovers will be delighted at the prospect of again hearing Theodore Bendix and his Symphony Players. Mr. Bendix has secured for his coming engagement Arthur Lichstein, violin soloist and prize graduate of the Stern Conservatory of Music, Berlin; Leo Sachs, a superb cellist, who has been associated with some of the greatest European orchestras, and for second violinist Frederic Handte, soloist with Victor Herbert's orchestras last winter. Eunice Burnham and Charles Irwin will contribute "A Song Sketch at the Piano." Miss Burnham excels as a pianist and comedienne, and Mr. Irwin brings with him an admirable reputation from the London music halls. Jesse Lasky presents "Three Beautiful Types"—a blonde, Kalene Carter; a brunette, Grace Cooper, and an auburn, Georgie Russell. In living representations the three girls present a very beautiful posing act. Claude Golden, the celebrated Australian card expert, will perform a variety of marvelous feats of sleight-of-hand. Ida Divinoff, a young Russian violinist, who has been acclaimed as a rare musical genius in Vienna, Leipsic, Hamburg, Berlin and Munich, will be heard in a carefully selected program. Frank North will present a sequel to "Back to Wellington" called "An Unwelcome Visitor." It will be the last week of Victor Moore, Emma Littlefield and Company in the laughable travesty "Change Your Act or Back to the Woods."

IRISH FLOORED.

In a mix-up at the session of the California Development Board at Santa Rosa, Colonel John P. Irish of Oakland was "floored" with a jolt to the eye, delivered by John W. Keegan of the Santa Rosa Chamber of Commerce.

The fracas started when Keegan, who had been circulating stories to the effect that Colonel Irish was attending the convention as an employee of the Southern Pacific in an attempt to defeat the home rule in taxation amendment, entered the hall.

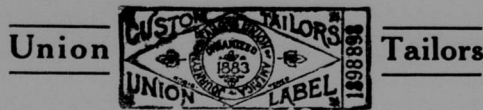

The Colonel accosted Keegan in the hall with, "Who told you that I am in the employ of the Southern Pacific?"

"You are in the employ of anyone who has the price," answered Keegan.

"Liar!" roared the Colonel.

And then Keegan let go his right, connecting with full force on the Colonel's eye.

Telephone Market 56

JAMES W. MULLEN.....Editor

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1914.

Who receives help should remember it—
Who gives aid should forget it.

—Allan F. McIntyre.

One of the arguments of the prohibitionists is that men will do more work "without spirits and without raising wages."

Amendment No. 10 on the ballot provides for abolishing the pernicious poll tax now so unfairly collected in California. Vote on this proposition and vote yes.

Louis Kemper, international secretary of the United Brewery Workmen, is dead, and the sympathy of the labor movement goes to that organization, the interests of which he so carefully guarded.

Maine has been a prohibition state since 1851, yet there is more drunkenness there, in proportion to population, than in California. Therefore level-headed men, even though they have no use for the saloon, will vote against the prohibition amendment on November 3d.

If you want the eight-hour day bad enough to go to the polls and vote for it, the opportunity will be given you on Tuesday, November 3d.
Noise will not carry the law. Only the ballot deposited in the box will do that. The fellow who simply shouts and never votes, while numerous, doesn't count for much.

The fellow who is so blinded with prejudice that he can not see is in a far worse predicament than the man who has lost his sight. The latter knows he is blind and develops as much as possible other senses in order to overcome his deficiency, while the former stumbles on recklessly injuring both himself and others. Both are represented in the labor movement, and the sooner they are recognized the better.

A report is current that Tom Flynn, arch enemy of organized labor and owner of the "Wasp," has been compelled for financial reasons to sell the paper. This is just another instance of the end of men who spend their lives in tearing down valuable institutions rather than in building them up. Leon Van Doast of Chicago is said to be the purchaser of the paper and will change its policy.

Notwithstanding the opinion of the Attorney-General to the contrary, we emphatically assert the regulation of working hours by the State comes within its police powers, and therefore the eight-hour law, if carried by the people will not be in violation of the Federal constitution. Those who are in favor of the law should not allow the Attorney-General's opinion to produce apathy among them.

:: Where Lies the Fault? ::

We talked a few days ago with a number of farmers who complained bitterly that they did not receive enough for their products.

There is, of course, continued complaint on the part of the consuming public about the high cost of living.

Now here are the two extreme ends of the chain—the producer on the one end and the consumer on the other—and each complaining of the utter absence of a square deal.

That there is something wrong somewhere is quite generally conceded, but where the fault lies is a much mooted question.

If the producer is being denied a just recompense for his products and the consumer is being overcharged for them, then the wrong would appear to be perpetrated by someone in between the two points.

We look then to the transportation agencies, but they throw up both hands and shout that they are being compelled to carry the products at so low a figure that ultimate disaster awaits them.

The next place to attract the attention of the inquirer is the wholesale or commission branch of our distributing system, but the men in charge here assert the margin is so low as to give them but a bare living, and that their profits are disgracefully small.

Turning then to the retailer we are met with the complaint, very uniform in character, that there is no profit to be earned in the business and that a very large percentage of them yearly become bankrupts as a direct consequence.

In view of these assertions all along the line, what conclusion is to be reached by the casual investigator?

Has our distributing system become so complicated, cumbersome and expensive that all engaged in the production and delivery of the various articles, as well as the consumer, must suffer as a consequence, or is it a case of shrewd deception being practiced in some quarter?

Upon the proper answer to this question much depends, and a thorough, impartial and painstaking investigation might result in a complete change in business all around.

The quite general opinion is, however, that the transportation agencies and the middlemen are really at fault, and that the problem must be solved by bringing the producer and the consumer into closer touch with each other.

There are, of course, many schools of political economy that insist the whole difficulty can be remedied by the inauguration of their particular schemes, but most of them deal with the remote future, and what the people want is an immediate remedy. They want the disease from which they are suffering cured right now, and the clamor for help has brought about activity in some governmental quarters. The United States government, through the instrumentality of the parcel post, has undertaken in some sections of the country, as an experiment, to relieve the strain by simplifying, expediting and cheapening distribution. This attempt to bring the two factors into closer touch, in spite of the present limited facilities of the postoffice department, is said to have been fairly successful, and will be developed as rapidly as possible in the hope of relieving both the farmer and the householder.

At various times and in numerous places attempts have been made to do away with the middleman by the establishment of free public markets, but most of them, for some reason or other, have resulted in failure. The reasons, however, have not been uniform. Rather have they been of great variety.

New York City is at present conducting an experiment along this line with some degree of success. So far as the trial has gone the fact has been established that housewives in sufficient numbers to make the markets pay can be attracted to them, but the farmers are skeptical and have not responded to the effort to do away with the middleman as readily as had been anticipated. Careful observers, however, maintain that if the farmers may be led to bring their products to these markets and treat fairly with the consumers the supplies will surely be absorbed and material benefits redound to both producer and consumer.
In order that this most desirable result may be brought about there is now serious agitation for the establishment of a municipal department of commerce, the function of which will be the doing of all the things necessary to the establishment of the free market system upon a solid, permanent basis.

The New York experiment will warrant the careful watching of other municipalities in order that no time may be lost in taking advantage of the opportunities to reduce the high cost of living if the results are favorable.

Fluctuating Sentiments

Word just received from England by officials of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition gives hope that specimens of the famous Chillingham wild, white cattle will be in the live stock show of the exposition. These cattle were first enclosed in Chillingham Park in 1220 A. D. They have been traced as descendants of the white bull of Caledonia.

It is altogether probable the European war will greatly aid California, and the entire Pacific Coast, in solving the problem of immigration which the opening of the Panama Canal promised to present. Because of the war the flood is not likely to be so great, and will be spread out over a much longer period of time, thus giving us an opportunity to handle the influx in a more beneficial and satisfactory manner.

Commenting on the fiftieth anniversary of the first railway post office, the Springfield (Mass.) "Republican" notes that it moved out of Chicago in the form of a row of letter boxes in the rear end of a baggage car on the Dixon air line train. The three clerks sorted mail while the train rumbled over the tracks and when they drew into Dixon the party stood on the platform and saw the station agent receive a bag of mail, ready to be distributed. This was the first railway mail car in the United States and in the world.

The United States Government and nearly all the States have enacted various laws to protect wild game from complete destruction. It is up to the people of California at the November election to sustain similar legislation in this State. The last Legislature passed an act prohibiting the sale of wild game. The game dealers and French restaurants of San Francisco, and the market hunters, who slaughter wild life to sell, are seeking to nullify this act. Men and women of this State should vote Yes on the "Non-Sale of Game," proposition No. 18.

The Panama-Pacific International Exposition is 95 per cent completed, more than four months ahead of the opening day. There are 112 buildings that are completed or in course of construction. In "The Zone" 700 artisans are at work rushing this part of the exposition to early completion. On the state and foreign areas 900 men are at work. The Idaho, Wisconsin, North Dakota, New Jersey and Oregon buildings are completed. The others of the forty-three participating States and Territories make a good showing. Among the forty participating foreign nations the Canadian and Honduras pavilions are completed and those farthest along of the others are: Turkey, Bolivia, Sweden, Cuba, China, the Netherlands, Argentina and Australia.

Every now and then the list of American cities according to population needs to be revised and the child who has learned to recite it finds it useless on his hands. There are those who can remember laboriously urging their memories to receive and retain a list that began "New York, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Baltimore," which is now long obsolete. Meanwhile we have been learning that "American" is not identical with "United States," and so when the question comes, "What is the third largest city in America?" there may be some who will think south of the equator as well as north. In so doing they will be "warm" as children say when playing "Hide the thimble," and will not be utterly surprised to find that Buenos Aires is the thimble; rather a large one, representing a population of 1,700,000, or ten times its figure less than a half century ago.

Wit at Random

The New Maid—In my last place I always took things fairly easy.

Cook—Well, it's different here. They keep everything locked up.—"Tit-Bits."

Mrs. Green—Do you ever flatter your husband?

Mrs. Wyse—Yes, I sometimes ask his advice about things.—Boston "Transcript."

"Don't keep pestering me."

"Then you won't marry me?"

"I wouldn't even be engaged to you at a summer resort."—Louisville "Courier-Journal."

"I was outspoken in my sentiments at the club today," said Mrs. Garrulous to her husband the other evening. With a look of astonishment he replied:

"I can't believe it, my dear. Who outspoke you?"—"National Monthly."

Mrs. X. relates that while in London she inquired in a shop if they had any fresh eggs.

"Yes, mum, plenty," said the clerk; "them with a hen on 'em are fresh."

"I don't see any with a hen on them," said Mrs. X., looking around for a nest.

"The letter 'hen,' mum, not the bird. 'Hen' stands for 'noo-laid,' mum."—Boston "Transcript."

Some nations were fighting fiercely.

"Why are you fighting so?" inquired the bystanders, moved at length to curiosity.

"To save civilization!" replied the nations severally.

Here a draggled figure rose from the mire under the feet of the combatants and limped lamely away.

"And who are you?" asked the bystanders, with a disposition to get to the bottom of the matter.

"Don't speak to me—I'm civilization!" the figure made answer, somewhat pettishly.—New York "Evening Post."

"Please give me a lift," a familiar appeal by a pedestrian on a country road to his more favored brother in a vehicle, is sometimes varied in New York State, a newspaper writer asserts, to "Please give me a hitch." Apropos of this the story is told that Lincoln once asked a man driving along a country road to carry his overcoat. "Certainly," said the man, "but what about yourself?" "I intend to remain in it," was the laconic reply.

"This plant belongs to the begonia family."

"Ah! And you are taking care of it while they are away."—Boston "Times."

Old Gentleman—Well, my boy, and when does your birthday come?

Boy (who has been cautioned not to fish for presents)—Oh, it passed by a long time ago—a year ago next Saturday.—"Sacred Heart Review."

The cultured young woman from Girton was trying to make conversation.

"Do you care for Crabbe's Tales?" she asked.

"I never ate any," replied her partner at the fancy dress ball; "but I'm just dead struck on lobsters' claws."—"Sacred Heart Review."

Miscellaneous

THE FAR DREAMING SEA.

By J. J. Galvin.

Borne on soft zephyrs from far Dreaming Sea,
Echoing memories come back to me.
Not all of pleasure, and not all of woe,
So like the chapters of books do they go.

Friends long forgotten, and meetings by chance;
Raptures of party, of music, and dance.
Voices that whispered the soul's confidence;
Eyes that encouraged each halting suspense.
Tokens of love, and calm seasons of prayer;
Dullness, and sadness, and almost despair.

Then comes the Fair One, whose presence is bliss;
A soul-thrilling song, and a ring, and a kiss.
Now tarry, Ye Zephyrs, and rest o'er the heart,
For fain would I dwell on this holier part;
And when you re-visit the valleys of men
Bring me! O bring me! this picture again.

The vision has passed, and the sunlight appears,
As though to illumine the long vanished years.
Dreamings! Sweet Dreamings! float back to your sea,

But remember you always are welcomed by me.

HANDS.

By John F. MacKey.

I see a row of hands:

Hands gnarled and knotty, calloused, hard, and rough;

Toil-worn and maimed from serving Geed's demands;

Nails stubbed and soiled, and some with fingers lost;

Hands chained to drudgery all the weary day;
The hands that make the wealth.

I see a row of hands:

Soft, white, and dainty, decked with snowy cuff
Or gold, bejeweled, wrist-encircling bands;

Nourished by plunder from the hands that toil;
Hands that know no action save in play;

The hands that take the wealth.

ROUND BY ROUND.

By George Matthew Adams.

Human life, from the bottle to the bier, is but the repetition of the principle that is the guiding one in all the achievements of life—growth round by round. In the thought of one of our most inspiring poets—

You build the ladder by which you rise.

We can eat only so much at a meal; we can only do so much work at a stretch; we can think only just so far. Nature automatically starts and stops us in our tasks, for she knows that her great race must needs go ahead round by round, and that—

You build the ladder by which you rise.

Will it be a great ladder, leading to "vaulted skies," or a ladder of just a few rounds reaching but above "the lowly earth?" You always have with you the power of choice. There are no sharp picketed fences around ambition or opportunity. Round by round you may reach the priceless glories and limitless honors that cluster about the topmost rounds. But remember that—

You build the ladder by which you rise.

Today at your desk or in your shop or at your work—no matter what its nature—you are making up rounds over which you may climb. Work with the zeal and care of a real master. And keep in your mind and in your heart that picture of the summit as—

You build the ladder by which you rise.

Notes in Union Life

The following San Francisco trade unionists passed away during the week: Charles E. Tyler of the stationary engineers, Patrick Burns of the marine firemen, Charles H. Hoge of the musicians, Martin A. Paul of the painters, George R. Wood of the cooks, Daniel Griffin of the blacksmiths.

Boiler Makers' Union No. 205 has indorsed the Eight-Hour League and is sending V. J. O'Leary as delegate.

Blacksmiths' Union No. 168 is grieved at the sudden death of Daniel Griffin, one of its oldest members, who was killed Tuesday as a result of a severe fall.

Stationary Firemen have invested $200 in Labor Temple bonds.

Steam Fitters' Union will hold a grand ball on November 21st at the German House.

At the meeting of the Blacksmiths' Union on Tuesday evening last the organization voted to take another thousand dollars worth of Labor Temple bonds.

Frederick W. Eley of the "Bulletin" staff is to represent his paper at the convention of the American Federation of Labor which opens in Philadelphia on Monday, November 9th. He will write a daily story of the proceedings of the convention.

THE ABSENT VOTER.

Number 14 on the ballot is an initiative measure which provides for voting by mail. It is intended to benefit railroad men, commercial travelers and others who cannot always adjust their movements to the needs of elections.

The measure provides that not later than ten days nor earlier than twenty days before election day any registered voter may apply to the county clerk of the county in which he is registered and receive a certificate of identification and an official ballot of the county and precinct in which he is registered.

On election day, at any polling place in the State, more than ten miles away from his home polling place, the voter may go to the polls with his certificate and ticket and present them in a sealed envelope to the election officers.

After satisfying themselves that the voter is the man described in the certificate after he has made an affidavit to that effect on the back of the certificate, the judges shall receive the ballot, if properly marked.

At the close of the polls the election judges shall forward by mail to the home counties the ballots of all absent voters. These ballots shall be counted by the supervisors in the official canvass of the votes. Proper precautions are taken to prevent possible frauds.

This system is in use in some of the Eastern States and is said to be a success. It simply operates to increase the vote and in the opinion of the supporters of the law the system has proved a success.

It is claimed that the only possible argument against the proposed law is that it is unnecessary. On the other hand, they assert that thousands of persons lose their votes at every election because their business calls them away from their voting places on election day.

There has been no serious opposition to the introduction of the mail voting system. In some quarters it has been denounced as a senseless innovation which makes elections more complicated. It is called another evidence of radicalism.

The friends of the plan argue that the advantages of the plan far outweigh its disadvantages.

Little do men perceive what solitude is and how far it extendeth; for a crowd is not company, and faces are but a gallery of pictures, and talk but a tinkling cymbal where there is no love.—Bacon.

INSURANCE TO BE REDUCED.

The operations of the State in the field of compensation insurance have been so successful that on January 1, 1915, barring any unusually serious and unexpected calamity, the State Compensation Insurance Fund will be prepared to allow a return of premium to its policy holders equalling 15 per cent of earned premiums and distributed in percentages ranging from 5 to 25 per cent of premiums of employers in various hazards, depending upon the loss experience in the several groups.

YOU CAN

"You can take command of yourself at any moment you desire to do so. Study and analyze your Abilities and Powers and muster them all into your service. For you can make of yourself a towering figure in the work of the world. No one owns you. One hundred per cent of the Stock in your personal Corporation belongs to you. The little people of Destruction that whine at your door whine at the door of every forceful man. You can make them mere Pygmies in their Power over your Future."

This is a book which stimulates to action before a page is finished. It is concentrated energy and common sense. Dipping into it is like touching a live electric wire. It vitalizes.

Among the titles of these short, pithy articles are Silence, Health, Character, Mistakes, Ruts, Together, Time, Dare, Pay, Why, See, System, Dream, Be Prompt, and many others. Each puts forth a fundamental truth of right and efficient living in such plain and forceful language that it sticks.

The author is himself the founder and head of a successful business.

ANIMALS OF PRODUCTION.

From being mere animals of production, the workers have become the "hands" of production; and they are now reaching out to become the masters of production. And, while in other periods of the world their intolerable misery led them again and again to strike out in a kind of torrential anarchy that pulled down society itself, they have in our time, for the first time in the history of the world, patiently and persistently organized themselves into a world power. Where shall we find in all history another instance of the organization in less than half a century of eleven million people into a compact force for the avowed purpose of peacefully and legally taking possession of the world? They have refused to hurry. They have declined all short cuts. They have spurned all violence. The "bourgeois democrats," the terrorists and the syndicalists, each in their time, have tried to point out a shorter, quicker path. The workers have refused to listen to them. On the other hand they have declined the way of compromise, of fusions, and of alliances, that have also promised a quicker and shorter road to power. With the most maddening patience they have declined to take any other path than their own—thus infuriating not only the terrorists in their own ranks but those Greeks from the other side who came to them bearing gifts. Nothing seems to disturb them or to block their path. They are offered reforms and concessions, which they take blandly, but without thanks. They simply move on and on, with the terrible, incessant, irresistible power of some eternal natural force. They have been fought; yet they have never lost a single great battle. They have been flattered and cajoled, without once anywhere being appeased. They have been provoked, insulted, imprisoned, calumniated and repressed. They are indifferent to it all. They simply move on and on with the patience and the meekness of a people with the vision that they are soon to inherit the earth."—From "Violence and the Labor Movement," by Robert Hunter.

Any one can say "Yes." It sometimes requires the stuff of which heroes are made to say "No." "Yes" usually represents the line of least resistance. "No" is often a test of character. Those of us who say "Yes" to almost any proposition, float with the tide. Those of us who say "No" are generally battling upstream with an eye on the trophy which goes to the winner.—"Pictorial Review."

Typographical Topics

A communication from Representative George E. Mitchell to President Tracy, under date of October 15th, contains the information that, under instructions from the executive council of the I. T. U., San Rafael Typographical Union No. 729 was instituted on Thursday, October 14th. The new organization has a membership of 14, with prospects of two additional members in the near future. San Francisco has maintained jurisdiction over the towns of San Rafael and Sausalito for several years and a difference of opinion exists in our membership as to the advisability of granting a separate charter to the towns of Marin County. Now that the change has been made, however, it is to be hoped that the council has acted for the best interests of all concerned and that the baby union will have a long and prosperous career.

With favorable action by the Board of Supervisors of this city on the request of the Allied Printing Trades Council to submit to the people a charter amendment requiring the use of the union label on all printed matter and printed stationery contracted for and used by the city, it now becomes the duty of each member of the organization to assist the committee in charge of the campaign and get busy. This matter will not be pressed before the general election now pending is out of the way, but immediately following that event the campaign will be on in earnest. It is expected the date of election for charter amendments will be fixed for December 15th. The committee of the Allied Council in charge of the campaign is composed of George A. Tracy, Danton Doggett and Edward Meginity. Any members of the affiliated unions of the Allied Council willing to assist the committee in this campaign are requested to communicate with those in charge.

About half of the membership availed themselves of the opportunity to vote on the four referendum propositions submitted by the Providence convention, at the election on Tuesday of this week. John J. Cronin of the "Evening Bulletin" chapel departed for the Union Printers Home at Colorado Springs last Saturday. It is thought that the treatment afforded at the institution, together with climatic conditions, will prove of lasting benefit to the patient, and his many friends are hopeful that complete restoration to health will be attained.

The stated meeting of the union for October will be held in Council Hall, Labor Temple, 316 Fourteenth street, next Sunday at 1 p. m. Many matters of interest and importance will be up for consideration and action, and a good attendance should be on hand.

The Union Printers' Mutual Aid Society held its quarterly meeting at Native Sons' Hall, October 7th. The organization adopted the report of its special committee, appointed some months ago, to revise the constitution and by-laws of the society. Radical changes were made in the laws, including the consolidation of the offices of recording secretary, financial secretary and the treasurer. Hereafter the duties of those officials will be performed by one officer—the secretary-treasurer. George H. Branch was elected to fill this important position and the salary of the office was increased to an amount sufficient to compensate the secretary-treasurer for the additional work to be performed. The president of the organization was relieved of the entire responsibility of visiting sick members and in future this duty will be performed by a committee of three, including the president, first and second vice-presidents. Hereafter the society will meet quarterly on the second Sundays in January, April, July and October. Necessary changes in the laws were made in order that the business usually performed at the monthly meetings may be conducted by the board of directors.

Donovan, John Gilmour, C. A. Gilmour, Jos. Hansen, Wm. Morrisson, T. F. Hardy, John Fitzgerald, Joseph Phipps, Dan Laird, Ed. Roethe, H. C. Behrens, J. L. Madden, E. L. Smith, T. C. O'Leary.

REFUSE TO ARBITRATE.

The arbitration proposition presented to the employers of Stockton by the committee representing the unions, and which was rejected by the Merchants, Manufacturers and Employers' Association last Monday night, read as follows:

"The committee representing union labor of Stockton in the controversy which for weeks has existed between certain employers and employees believes it is a waste of time for this conference to try to adjust the differences which so frequently have been termed small and trivial by the employers. Hence, having endeavored to settle definitely and positively the differences referred to, and finding that it is impossible to arrive at any tangible and reasonable basis for a mutual understanding, we, the committee representing the unions of Stockton, hereby submit a proposition to you gentlemen, representing the employers, which in our opinion will terminate the injurious and unpleasant trouble, with credit and honor to all parties concerned.

"That both parties to this controversy, the employers on the one hand and the employees on the other, through their representatives, submit the questions at issue to a board of arbitration, made up as follows: Two to be selected by each side; these four so selected to choose the fifth; or three to be selected by each side; these six so selected to choose the seventh. The membership of said board of arbitration to be made up of persons absolutely free from any association, connection or membership with either of the parties involved in the present controversy. The board of arbitration is to organize immediately, conduct its hearings and procedure of admitting evidence and taking testimony as the best judgment of the board may deem proper and right; the results of the findings and decisions of this board of arbitration to be binding upon both parties to the controversy, and in the furtherance of permanent peace and prosperity to the city of Stockton and its people."

The fact that the association rejected the offer of arbitration has no particular significance so far as the main fight is concerned, as is plainly indicated by the following statement by one of its members:

"The leading members of the association fully appreciate that we are defeated, but they desire to avoid the humiliation of admitting defeat, and would rather see the association crumble to pieces than do so. They know that a large number of members will withdraw and settle individually with the unions and that this means the death of the organization, but they are convinced that that is the best way out of a very bad situation—a better way than openly admitting failure. Personally I was willing to arbitrate, but the majority voted the other way. I shall now give up my membership in the association and go it alone in peace with labor as I have heretofore."

This statement indicates that while some of the employers may still elect to fight, a great many of them will now proceed to make terms with the unions in their individual capacity.

One thing, however, is absolutely certain. The unions are winning the fight and need but keep up the good work to make the victory complete.

The boycott on the products of the Sperry Flour Company must be kept up with vigor, and the small assessment which has enabled the strikers to hold out must be continued to the end.
